

FIRST GAME HERE OCT. 5 IF "CARDS" WIN PENNANT

Schedule of Games and Prices Announced by Commissioner Landis
After Meeting in Pittsburgh

SEATS WILL COST
FROM $1.10 TO $6.60

First Two Games of World's Series Will Be in American League City—
All Contests Start at 1:30.

In the event the Cardinals win
the National League pennant, the first world's series game in St.
Louis will be played on Tuesday,
Oct. 5. The other two games in St. Louis would be played on Wednesday, Oct. 6, and Thursday,
Oct. 7.

This arrangement was determined upon today by the decision of Baseball Commissioner Landis, announced in Pittsburgh, to open the world's series on Saturday,
Oct. 2, in the city of the American League pennant winning club.
From all indications this will be
New York.

Commissioner Landis announced that the first and second games would be played in the American League pennant winning city. The third, fourth and fifth games will be played in the city of the pennant-winning National League club.

Schedule of Games.
In the event more than five games are necessary for the world series winner to take four out of seven games, the sixth game, and the seventh, if necessary, will be held in the city of the American League pennant-winner. Thus the complete schedule of the world's series games, in the event the New York Yankees win the American League pennant, and the St. Louis Cardinals win the National League pennant, will be as follows:

Saturday, Oct. 2, at New York.
Sunday, Oct. 3, at New York.
Tuesday, Oct. 5, at St. Louis.
Wednesday, Oct. 6, at St.
Louis.
Thursday, Oct. 7, at St. Louis.
Saturday, Oct. 9, at New York
(if necessary).
Sunday, Oct. 10, at New York
(if necessary).

The world's series, if played in St. Louis this year, will be an added attraction for Villed Properties Week, as the prophet's parade will be held on Tuesday night,
Oct. 4, and the ball at the Coliseum on Wednesday night, Oct. 6.

Seats $1.10 to $6.60.

The club executives taking part in the conference at Pittsburgh with Commissioner Landis decided on the following world's series price schedule:

Box seats, $6.60; reserved seats,
$4.40; general admission tickets,
$2.20; bleachers, $1.10; all prices including tax.

All games of the series will be started at 1:30 p. m. standard time in the city of play.

Should the series be played between New York or Philadelphia in the American League and St.
Louis, Cincinnati or Pittsburgh, in the National League, there would be a day of rest for the contending teams between the fourth and fifth games, to permit the clubs to travel. No day of rest would be allowed in a series between teams within easy travel distance.

Should a scheduled game be postponed on account of rain or other adverse weather, before the fourth and one half games had been played, it will be played off on the grounds where the game was originally scheduled, on the following day.

In the event of a legal time game will be played off after the seventh game of the series on the grounds where the game was played.

It was announced by the commissioner that umpires for the series would be selected later by the presidents of the National and American leagues.

Those attending the Pittsburgh conference, in addition to commissioner Landis, were: American League—Ed Barrow and Charles
Combs for New York. E. S.
Brennan for Cleveland. Robert Wood for Philadelphia.

National League—Wesley O'Con-
ner, secretary to Commissioner Landis, represented Chicago; August Hermann, Louis Widrig and Hendricks, Cincinnati; Samuel B. Bronson, St. Louis; and Barney
Stewart, Pittsburgh.

The Washington club did not send a representative, having wired Commissioner Landis that the Sonia would be satisfied with the arrangements made for the series.

CARDINALS WIN FIRST GAME FROM BOSTON, 2-0; RHEM PITCHES IN SECOND

Hits by Hornsby and Bell Produce Two Runs at Start — Goltsmith Lasts
Only One Inning.

A running account and the box
score of the Cardinals' first game on page 4.

By J. ROY STOCKTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.
BOSTON, Sept. 11.—After winning the opening game, 2 to 0, with Jesse Haines on the hill and thereby increasing the team's advantage in the National League pennant race
by half a game, Manager Hornsby sent Flint Rhem to the hurling hill for the Cardinals in the second half of the doubleheader here this afternoon. Goltsmith, a newcomer, pitched for the Braves.

A victory for the Cardinals in the second tilt would enable the club to gain another half game on the club that wins the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati contest. It also would put Hornsby's men a full game and a half ahead of the loosing team.

A defeat for the Cardinals would enable the winner of the Red-Pirate contest to gain half a length on the men of Hornsby.

The attendance was estimated at 18,000.

TULSA GIRL IS NAMED
MISS AMERICA OF 1926

Slim 18-Year-Old Miss With Long Chestnut Hair Wins
At Atlantic City.

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 11.—
Norina Smallwood of Tulsa, Ok.,
18 Miss America of 1926.

This year's specifications for perfect beauty, as indicated by her measurements are: Height, 5 feet 4 1/2 inches; weight, 118 pounds;
neck, 12 inches; bust, 33 inches;
hips, 32 1/2 inches; waist, 24 1/2 inches; thigh, 19 1/2 inches; calf, 12 1/2 inches; ankle, 7 inches.

The 18-year-old successor to Fay Lanpher, Californian, last year's Miss America, was selected from 73 contestants from as many cities last night by 10 out of 15 artists and illustrators, who were the judges. Miss Washington (Marjorie Joesting) won the other five votes.

The slim beauty has blue eyes and long chestnut hair. She was chosen not only for perfection of face and figure, but for personality, intelligence and poise. She won first prize Thursday night for appearance in evening dress. Last year, Fay Lanpher took third place in this event.

Miss Smallwood is an art student, a sophomore in the Oklahoma College for Women at Chickasha, and she plans to continue her studies there. Later she may accept some motion picture contracts.

WOMEN SAYING THEY ARE NUNS HELD AS SMUGGLERS

Four Arrested Said to Have Had Valuable Laces and Drugs Concealed in Clothing.

By the Associated Press.
ST. ALBANS, Vt., Sept. 11.—
Four women, claiming to be nuns of the Order of Franciscan Sisters, were arrested here in Fall River,
Boston and New Bedford, Mass., under arrest here in an alleged plot to smuggle a quantity of drugs and more than $5000 worth of fine lace into the United States.
They gave the following names:
Sister Mary, and Perfecta Lopez
of St. Anthony's Convent, Fall River; Sister Sagrado of the Convent
of Our Lady of Good Hope, Boston,
and Sister Olivia of the Convent
of Our Lady of Good Hope, Boston.

The four were arrested on the Canadian Pacific Montreal-Boston steamer at Richmond early today by customs authorities who were inspecting passengers. The suspicions of the inspectors were aroused when they saw a piece of lace protruding from the gown of one of the nuns. They were immediately taken from the train for a preliminary inspection by a woman customs officer, who found, officials said, a large quantity of excellent quality laces sewed into their petticoats. Their luggage revealed, in three suitcases, more lace and the drugs. It is charged.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—The convent of "Our Lady of Good Hope," given as an address by one of four women arrested at St. Albans, Vt., today for smuggling, could not be located in Boston.

ELEPHANT'S ESCAPE FATAL

CRANBROOK, Mass., Sept. 11.—
Myrtle, one of four elephants that strayed from a circus menagerie, died yesterday of pneumonia, contracted during cold nights in the month she had roamed through the heavy underbrush in this district. Myrtle was captured yesterday after airplanes, trackers and animal experts had conducted an expensive search for her. She was the third to be found of the four which ran away. Search for Charlie, still at liberty, is being continued.

FREIGHT TRANSFER MONOPOLY SCHEME BEFORE RAILROADS

Executives to Consider Plan
Monday That Would Give Bulk of Business to Columbia Terminals Co.

SHIPPERS OF CITY CONDEMN CHANGE

Proposal to Reduce Number of Handling Stations Likely to Result in Congestion, They Say.

A plan, which would give the Columbia Terminals Co., a monopoly of the railroad freight transfer business in St. Louis and freeze out two smaller concerns now competing with it in that line, will be laid before executives of the various railroads entering St. Louis, at a meeting Monday.

The new proposal has been drawn and will be presented by a committee of railroad traffic representatives who have been making a study of the transfer situation.
It has been in discussion for several years and during that period has been denounced by shippers' organizations and by the St. Louis Association of Team and Truck Owners.

The plan is predicated upon the premise that the Federal authorities have ordered the consolidation of transfer facilities in St. Louis are too scattered and that the railroads could save money by a concentration of the so-called "off-track" stations.

Under the plan of operation in use here, transfer companies are utilized in carrying freight from the cars at the "on-track" stations to the "off-track" stations where the shippers may call for their consignments.

Paid From Freight Charges.
So closely related is this function to the general shipping process that the transfer companies' charges are included in the freight tariffs approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the companies are paid out of the general freight charge levied upon the shippers.

This work is a distinct activity from the general hauling business done by many transfer companies.
Only three St. Louis companies—the Columbia Terminals, the Fidelity Transfer and the Central Transfer companies—are authorized to do railroad transfer work within the strict meaning of the term. The other companies are simply general haul-ers and have no part in completing a freight shipment process begun
by a railroad.

The Columbia Terminals Co. as the largest transfer firm in St.
Louis, now handles more than 50 per cent of the railroad freight shipped in and out of St. Louis, or transferred in less than carload lots from eastward to the Fidelity line in East St. Louis to West Side cars on this side of the river for further shipment by rail.

Competitors Left Out.
It has five outboard "off-track" stations in St. Louis and three inbound stations. Its largest competitor is the Fidelity Transfer with two stations. The Central Transfer Co. with two stations, is the third authorized freight transfer agency here.

The plan of the railroad committee is to submit to the Interstate Commerce Commission, advocates retention of only six outboard depots with a view of concentrating the transfer facilities. A close perusal of the report reveals, however, a fact which is not specifically stated, namely, that the stations to be retained are the property of the Columbia Terminals Co., while the stations of its competitors are left out of the plan entirely.

In offering its plan, the committee of railroad representatives advances the argument that the consolidation of the transfer work will make possible a reduction in rates to the shipper. The plan, it is argued, will not mean a monopoly since the other companies will be free to haul to and from the "off-track" stations.

This work, however, would mean merely that the Fidelity and the Central companies would still have the privilege of doing a general trucking business. Their railroad transfer privilege, with its particularly low freight tariffs for hauling between "off-track" and "on-track" stations, would be taken from them by the plan and lodged exclusively in the Columbia Terminals Co.

Condemned by Shippers.
Officials of the Fidelity and Central companies contend that a curtailment of transfer facilities cannot work a benefit to the shippers since the present transfer stations are always crowded with freight.

ITALIAN CLIQUE LEADER FOUND HURT IN HOSPITAL

Vito Giannola, Wounded in Arm and Chest, Tells Police He Shot Self When Cleaning Revolver.

DENIES HE FOUGHT CUCKOO GANGSTERS

Brother of Man Who Surrendered on U. S. Auto Charge Is Registered at St. Mary's as Vito Gemeno.

Vito Giannola, leader of an Italian clique, is at St. Mary's Hospital, under an assumed name, suffering from revolver wounds in the left arm and chest, which he today told city detectives had been accidentally self-inflicted when cleaning a revolver at his home
"last Wednesday or Thursday night."

He denied reports reaching the police that he had been wounded
last Wednesday noon in an exchange of shots with three Cuckoo gangsters on the Lebaon road, near Collinsville, Ill. In the heart of the district in charge of the Side mob plies its threefold activities—liquor theft, moonshining and robbery.

Under Assumed Name.
The patient is a brother and partner of John Giannola, who surrendered to Federal authorities last February on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile to a point near the lonely farm on Horseshoe Lake, where the bodies of Deputy Constable Ohmer Hockett and John Balke were found buried in a single grave earlier in the month, having been slain by moonshiners.

Vito is registered at the hospital
under the name of Vito Gemeno.
He gave his age as 35, his address as 1126 North Seventh street, and his occupation as a butcher. Dr.
W. T. Coughlin, who is in attendance, declined to discuss the case.

Several Recent Shootings.
In the exchange of shots on Lebaon road Wednesday, Herman Tipton, a Cuckoo gangster, was wounded in the lower right arm.
His two companions who escaped the fusillade, were arrested. They were Anthony J. Michael, 27, and Joseph Simon, 24. An eyewitness said two machines ran past Tipton's car and opened fire on it.

There have been several recent shootings in a feud among bootleggers, and several Italians have been wounded and one killed.

DRY RAIDERS IN NEW ORLEANS FIND LARGE DISTILLERY

Plant, Occupied Entire Building, and Records Were Kept in Code, Now Being Deciphered.

By the Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—Federal agents today uncovered what they believed to have been the largest alcohol distillery in the South, within a stone's throw of prohibition headquarters here.

The mammoth plant, estimated to have a capacity of from 2000 to 10,000 gallons a week, was in the center of the wholesale district and is believed to have been in operation several months.

Joseph B. Kessler, alleged operator of the still, his stenographer, Mrs. Frank Miller and three Negro employees were arrested yesterday. Kessler contended that he was the owner of the J. B. Kessler Salvage Co., and denied that he had knowledge of the presence of the liquor-making outfit in the building he occupied.

Books and records confiscated are expected to lead to new discoveries and possibly the exposure of a gigantic interstate rum ring. The building was evidently given over to the exclusive manufacture of alcohol. The office records, though complete, were kept in code which agents are deciphering in their effort to connect other persons with the ring. Bill heads and stationery found in the office revealed that the company operated in Memphis, St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago.

The first floor of the building contained offices. On the second floor were three 1000-gallon steam boilers in which mash was boiled. Leading from the second floor to the fourth were two 24-inch copper towers, 35 feet high.

Through these mammoth condenser the fumes from the boiler passed to water coolers on the fourth floor.

An alarm system operated from the offices was arranged to give warning should a raid be made. As the agents entered the building, alarm bells sounded and the Negroes at work on the top floor attempted to escape through a skylight. One Negro was chased over the roofs of several adjoining structures before he was captured.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today against the S. Ruby Jewelry Co. in the Central National Bank Building, Seventh and Olive streets.

Three New York wholesale jewelers made claims totaling $11,100, and allege payment of rent in the sum of $1232.32, an antecedent debt, as the act of bankruptcy.

PLANS FOR POLICE HEADQUARTERS TO INCLUDE ARMORY

New 5-Story Building of Bedford Stone, to Cost $1,000,000 Will Be Ready by January, 1928.

CONTRACTS LET FOR CLEARING GROUND

Plans for the new Police Headquarters Building on the southwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Clark avenue, with a Police Armory on the south, to cost between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, were made public today.

The structure will be of five stories, built of Bedford stone, fronting 215 feet on Clark avenue and 235 feet on Twelfth boulevard. The armory, built of the same material will occupy the remaining 140 feet in the block on Twelfth, with a depth of 150 feet on Spruce street.

Contracts have been let for clearing old buildings from the site and for the foundations, a total of $108,000. The site was acquired by purchase this year at a cost of $29,848. The cost will come from municipal revenue $500,000 having been appropriated this year.

Basement Assembly Room. Central District headquarters will be on the first floor of the new building with a driveway on Twelfth boulevard leading to a court where prisoners will be unloaded at the door of the registration room. Offices of several departments, such as the traffic bureau, and auto theft bureau, will be on the first floor, while the assembly rooms will be in the basement.

The men's cellrooms or "hold-overs," isolation wards and men's detention rooms will occupy the second floor, with a mezzanine leading from the second floor to the fourth were two 24-inch copper towers, 35 feet high.

Through these mammoth condenser the fumes from the boiler passed to water coolers on the fourth floor.

An alarm system operated from the offices was arranged to give warning should a raid be made. # SHOT ENDS CHASE OF SLOT MACHINE THIEVES

Two Men, Who Impersonated County Officers, Tried to Escape in Auto.

A shot fired from a saved-off shotgun in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Anthony Fassler of St. Louis County brought two men fleeing in an automobile to a halt at Water street and Koeln avenue yesterday afternoon and ended a chase which had begun in a roadhouse at Telegraph and Baumgartner roads, in St. Louis County.

Heavy pellets from Fassler's gun had peppered Joseph Rous, 28 years old, driver of the car, about the left shoulder and arm. His companion was Charles A. Smith, 38 years old, who roomed with him at 6242 Gravois avenue. They had impersonated county officers and made a fake raid on Edward Baker's roadhouse in the county, seizing two slot machines which were on the bar.

The pair had entered the roadhouse about noon while Gottlieb Boehringer, the bartender, was in charge. They had at the time, "Ah, slot machines, eh? Well, we'll have to take those to Clayton." Despite Boehringer's protests, they loaded the machines into their automobile and drove away. Baker, the proprietor, returned just then and upon being told what had happened, set out in his automobile to overtake the "officers."

He picked up Deputy Sheriff Fassler at Telegraph and Lemay Ferry roads and the chase led north into Cahondelet. The fleeing car went past the Cahondelet police station and the police machine, operated by Lieut. Fred Reinwald, joined in the chase. When Fassler got close enough he shot at Rous and the pursuit ended.

The same two men, identified by the red touring car they drove, disappeared at Lafayette Cox of 3929A Greer avenue at Margaretta and Marcus avenue and after forcing him to drive with them to Kingshighway and Birch street, robbed him of $8 and a watch.

A Negro stopped Henry Wiese of 305A Pillmore street at Holladay and Bartner avenues at 11:50 p. m. and took $2 cents. Joseph Menarich of 1401A South Seventh boulevard was held up in his grocery by two men who escaped with $5.

Giant Lizards Can Outrun Man or Overpower Horse

Two Specimens, Found in Malay Archipelago and Brought to America, Resemble Dragon of Chinese Banner.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Two giant lizards, survivors of the "fiery dragons" of prehistoric times, arrived on the Cunard liner Aquitania yesterday.

Each is eight feet long, weighs 200 pounds, and has a body as thick as a man's, covered with a close protective armour. The great saurians, long sought by zoologists, were captured by Douglas Burden, a trustee of the American Museum of Natural History, on the island of Komodo in the Malay Archipelago. They are in the care of Prof. E. R. Dunn of Smith College.

The likeness of the "dragons" has been blazoned on the flag of China for 4000 years. The big lizards have red, forked tongues and sometimes make a loud hissing noise, like escaping steam, just as their "fire-breathing" ancestors did. Their legs are short and stubby and each foot has four claws. Their tails are spiked.

The discovery and capture of the two "dragons," which are entirely carnivorous, was one of the most important zoological events of modern times, scientists say. They are the only ones in captivity. Alan Cobham, British aviator, sighted giant lizards from his plane as he flew over Komodo.

The Aquitania's butcher pushed two chickens into the heavy wooden cage for the morning meal, but they roosted, almost contemptuously, on the spiked tail of one of the monsters, both of which moved listlessly in their cage after their sea voyage.

Dr. Dunn said one of the "dragons" the expedition saw jumped on the back of a horse, dragged it down and injured it so severely that it had to be shot. Another at one meal ate the hind quarters of a deer "and was back for more two days later." They can run faster than a man, Dr. Dunn said.

It is believed that the animals are lineal descendants of a species that once lived in China and Australia and that now exists only on the almost forgotten island where the Burden Expedition pitched camp.

12 INDICTED AS RESULT OF FREIGHT THEFTS True Bills Returned at Danville Replace Warrants Against St. Louis and East St. Louis Merchants.

The Federal grand jury, at Danville, Ill., has returned indictments charging conspiracy to rob interstate shipments and possession of goods stolen from interstate shipments against Sam B. Dukes, Negro ex-convict, 10 white men and the wife of one of them, mostly merchants in St. Louis and East St. Louis.

The indictments replace warrants issued against the 12 last June after Dukes had confessed theft of $10,000 worth of freight and had pointed out stores where he said he disposed of his loot. The others denied knowingly receiving stolen goods.

Dukes has served two terms for interstate freight thefts, and estimates his total loot at $80,000. He asserts that in the robberies for which he was sent to prison a large part of the loot went to railroad police for protection.

FOSTER DAUGHTER OF DUPONT GETS DIVORCE IN RENO

Husband, Whom She Accused of Insane Jealousy, Was Son of Mail Carrier—They Met on Ship.

By the Associated Press. RENO, Nev., Sept. 11.—A romance between an heiress and the student son of a mail carrier, begun at sea, has ended in divorce.

Alicia Glendenning, adopted daughter of Alfred I. Dupont, the Delaware powder manufacturer, was awarded a decree last night against Harold Glendenning, whose parents live in Norwalk, Conn.

The Glendennings were married in London, June 28, 1922. Glendenning was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford. His father had been studying singing in Europe.

In her plea for a divorce she charged that her husband was insanely jealous of her; that he threatened often to choke her. He resented attentions paid to her by others, she declared, and frequently created scenes in public places by his remarks to her.

A 3-year-old son, Allan Stanford, was awarded to the mother for eight months of the year, while the father, who makes his home in London, will be entitled to the child for the other four months. The divorce proceedings were held in secret.

Glendenning and Miss Dupont met on board the Aquitania in September, 1920, when she was bound for Europe to finish her musical education. Glendenning, who had won his scholarship as one of the honor men of the graduating class at Dartmouth, was on his way to Oxford.

The marriage took place at St. Paul's Church, Knight's Bridge, London. It had the approval of both families. The bride and groom were invited to a reception at the Hyde Park Hotel after the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Glendenning resided in London until she returned to the United States. Mrs. Glendenning came to Reno and became a resident of the city in August, 1925. Her attorney stated that she contemplated making her home in Reno.

During the World War, Glendenning offered his services to the American Government and was assigned to the smokeshell plant of the Dupont Co. in Delaware.

CHICAGO SOCIETY STIRRED BY LETTER

Writer Accuses Hosts of Spanish Princess of Trying to Exploit Themselves.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Letters criticizing the motives of Mr. and Mrs. Bror Dahlberg as host of Princess Marie de Bourbon of Spain, have been turned over to Dahlberg's attorney for investigation.

Mrs. Dahlberg, much upset over the anonymous missives, which were sent to several Chicago society leaders, with carbon copies to the newspapers, expressed the belief today that they must be from some business enemy of her husband. She also is concerned over a quotation attributed to her in the newspapers that Chicago "has only a washtub aristocracy."

"I never used such a phrase in my life," she said, "and I never heard such a phrase until it was attributed to me."

The letters, written on a typewriter, charged that the Princess, who has just returned from a visit to the summer estate of the Dahlbergs at International Falls, Minn., was being used as a means of "exploiting both the social and material ambitions" of the Dahlbergs. They alleged that the Princess was to be taken to Florida to dedicate a church on land owned by Mrs. Dahlberg, said value of which would be enhanced by the prestige of the titled visitor, who is a second cousin of King Alfonso.

"I have land in Florida—20,000 acres—but it is a sugar plantation," said Dahlberg. "I am not selling real estate in Florida and have no intention of selling any. Nor is the Princess going to Florida. She is sailing Nov. 10 for Spain and as far as mixing up business with Mrs. Dahlberg's friends is concerned—that is ridiculous."

Gene Tunney's Training Work Much Rougher Than Champion Dempsey's

Challenger Allows His Partners to "Sock" Him Hard, While Holding Back His Own Punches.

By Robert Edgren.

STROUDSBURG, Sept. 11.—Gene Tunney, feeling near the edge of condition, is alternating days of boxing with days of road work and golf. The golf is road work with a little light exercise and entertainment thrown in.

Tunney shoots a very fair game, considering the fact that he has played only two or three years, and while he is going around the fine nine-hole course of the Country Club he gets away from the crowd at the training quarters and doesn't have to answer a thousand questions an hour—which is about as constant quizzing about his condition, his prospects, how he will fight Dempsey, what he thinks of Dempsey, what he eats for breakfast, what punch he'll try to knock Dempsey out with and who is his favorite post, doesn't seem to worry Gene. He has a quick answer for every question.

Tunney's mind is extremely alert. He isn't blatantly confident. Even when he says that he expects to meet Dempsey at any style of fighting the champion likes and best him in a couple of rounds, it doesn't sound like boasting. He talks so quietly and softly and always with a smile. He simply seems to be sure of himself.

Studied to Beat Dempsey.

"Since I first thought of trying to win the championship I've studied the intricacies of boxing with the sole idea of defeating Dempsey."

"I've studied as if I was taking a course in engineering. I don't think anything can happen in the ring that I won't be prepared for. If I am knocked down I expect to get up with a clear head, because blows never have dazed me yet and I don't believe Dempsey's blows are different from other blows. It might make me feel better, but I'm not sure."

"I usually have a headache when I'm hurt. Just before I knocked out Tommy Gibbons, Tom caught me with a good right hand on the side of the head and hooked his left to my chin. The left was the better blow. It shook me but it didn't hurt me in the least."

"I expect I believe I am better prepared for the contest, mentally, and at least his equal in condition and strength."

In the evening I met Bill Gibson, training at the desk of the Penn-Strods, and he told me of the sporting scribbles and camp followers who congregated. I told him something about Tunney's notions. Bill had a queerly humorous expression in his eye as he listened.

Mr. Gibson says "No".

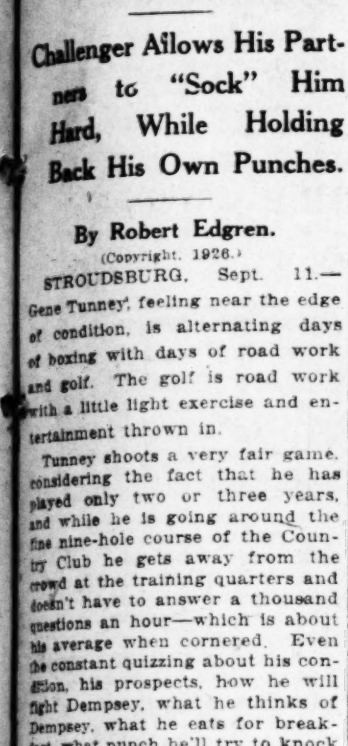

"You said, 'Gene said something like that to me. He said he almost hopes Dempsey will drop him, just once, because he knows he'll enjoy the novel experience of being on the floor and getting up to meet Dempsey's rush. I told him in this one. If you want to, you can have all the fun you want when you're champion, but make sure of Dempsey first.'"

Tunney isn't far wrong when he says he'll be able to match the champion in strength. He has developed tremendously in the past two years. His shoulders are wider than Dempsey's and his back is like a wedge. He isn't as symmetrically built as Dempsey, for if anything, his long and methodical training to build himself up into a heavyweight has made him a bit top-heavy. You can see it when he's boxing with his sparring partners. Sometimes his legs don't quite keep up with his body, especially when he is stepping clear after a miss. There are times when he is off-balance a bit, and Dempsey is lightning fast at taking advantage of things like this in a fight. But Tunney's strength, coupled with more speed than Dempsey has found in other fighters with the possible exception of Tommy Gibbons, may give Dempsey a new problem to solve.

There is a noticeable difference between Dempsey and Tunney, physically as well as mentally. Dempsey has trained off ten pounds of fat and his muscles are bigger than they were when he fought Willard. They stand out in ridges in his legs. His arms are different. They are bigger above the elbow and he still has the tremendous forearms and thick wrists and big hands that have been such weapons of destruction in other fights.

Tunney's muscles are all rounded and smooth. There isn't a lump or ridge on him. His arms look much compared to his shoulders and his forearms are much lighter than Dempsey's wrists and hands are smaller than Dempsey's, although strong and well knitted. Dempsey never had trouble with his hands. Tunney has hurt his Serrano Eliminates Werner in Singles of District Tennis Tourney.

By Davison Obar.

Edmund Serrano of the Triple A club defeated Joseph Werner, representing the St. Louis Country Club, in the feature match of the singles event in the St. Louis District tennis championship at Triple A yesterday, 6-4, 7-5.

Serrano is a former city champion, while Werner was captain of the 1921 Princeton University tennis team.

Werner started the first set with a rush and ran up a lead of 4 to 1 in games. Serrano began a steady attack which gave him five straight games and the set.

The second set was somewhat similar to the first. Werner ran up a 5 to 3 lead in this set but Serrano again outdistanced him to win the set.

Karl Hodge furnished a surprise in his fourth round match against Joe Smith by taking a set from the junior champion. Smith took the opening set, 6-2, but in the second Hodge played excellent tennis, gaining points by accurate placements and winning, 6-3.

Smith was forced to travel at top speed to take the third and final set, 6-3.

In the feature match of the doubles championship Ted Drewes and Ed Serrano, the present titleholders, were forced to a three-set battle by the veteran team of L. E. More and Gilbert Florida.

After losing the first set More and Florida set up a lulling attack which finally gave them the second set, 8-6.

Drewes and Serrano smashed their way to a victory in the third set, winning it, 6-2.

Gene Tunney's Style Is More Effective Than Champion's, In Opinion of Tom Gibbons

Challenger's Non-Aggressive Way of Fighting Will Give Him Decided Edge in Coming Bout, Writes Heavyweight Who Has Fought Both Men.

By Tommy Gibbons.

(The Only Fighter Who Has Met Both Tunney and Dempsey.)

In entering upon a discussion as to whose style, Dempsey's or Tunney's, is the most effective, I am going to startle my readers right off the bat with the flat statement that Gene Tunney's is. That may sound a little broad, but let me go into details in the matter.

Naturally Jack Dempsey's style of fighting is enough to scare any fighter, who is the least bit gun shy, silly.

Naturally Jack's powerful wallop does the greatest damage and are really more effective.

Yet in comparing the styles of Dempsey and Tunney as they looked to me in my fights with them, I can state, without giving Tunney any intentional slap on the back, that his style worried me more than Dempsey's. That was due for the simple reason that I didn't know what Gene was going to do next, but I knew almost every move Dempsey was going to make.

Tunney is not an aggressive fighter. That's what makes him effective and hard to fight. He stays away at all times, never leads and his mind works so quickly that a foe doesn't have a chance to prepare a defense for his next move. Because of this and a quick trigger mind, he has his foe up in the air at all times.

Dempsey is just the opposite. His mind doesn't work as fast as Tunney's. He's more deliberate in his actions. It's easier to decipher what his next move is. In fact, I was able to tell three or four punches in advance as to what the champion was going to do at Shelby. I believe that my close study of Dempsey's style and his strategy from fights that he had before mine permitted me to stay the limit of 15 rounds. I know that because I was able to solve Dempsey's style ahead of each blow it saved me a lot of punishment at Shelby, not saying I didn't get all I was entitled to and more.

Any fighter who has made a study of the sport will tell you that it is much harder to make a fight against an opponent who refuses to lead and constantly is going away. That is Tunney in every sense of the word.

To this day, I firmly believe that if I had been able to duck that first powerful punch that Dempsey crossed me with, I would have made a much better fight at Shelby than I really did.

Will Give Gene Edge.

Offhand, one would say that they can't see much advantage for Tunney in his nonaggressive style, but it will give him a decided edge in

Gene Tunney Still Needs Hard Work Experts Think

Champion Asserts He Always Fights the Other Fellow's Way in Bouts.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 11. Jack Dempsey always fights the other fellow's way. And this principle is to be the basis of his tactics when defending his title from Gene Tunney.

"I always fight the other fellow's way," the champion said. "I figure that if I'm champion I ought to be good enough to match any style of fighting that is put before me. If I fought in the same manner in each fight some clever fellow would be able to fathom the weak points in that style and beat me. And there are, of course, weak points in any manner of fighting. Therefore I always let the other fellow start something and I try my best to finish it like he started it."

Thinks Style Is Best.

It is the belief of Dempsey that if you immediately show your opponent you are willing to fight his way, then prove to him you are a better man at that style, you will discourage and dishearten him. That is the easiest way, he thinks, to make an opening in an opponent's defense.

Dempsey said that ever since he had been champion he had fought the same way as his opponents. Against Georges Carpentier he stood flat-footed, crouching to toe, and slambanged with both fists. Georges delivered his best punch to Dempsey's jaw and it failed to tell the champion. Dempsey's punches had another effect.

Against the clever Tom Gibbons, Dempsey boxed and his boxing was better than Gibbons'. Against Bill Brennan the champion fought a stand-up fight and got his man. Against Luis Angel Firpo the world champion fought a slugging match, the only style known to the Argentine, and though he came near defeat, the champion survived.

Still Needs Work.

Dempsey's workout yesterday afternoon after three days' idleness was witnessed by ring celebrities, including Benny Leonard. Many of the experts expressed the opinion that Dempsey still needed a lot of hard work, but he could reach top form.

Dempsey has sent a message of good will to Tunney. The champion said he hoped Tunney was training well and would be in excellent condition. He assured the challenger of his friendship—outside the ring—and said he did not believe all of the boasting statements attributed to Tunney about how he would knock out the champion in a round or less.

TECHNICALITIES BAR MOVES FOR SACCO, VANZETTI

Massachusetts Supreme Court Will Hear Pleas on Nothing Not Excepted to at the Trial.

NO PROTEST MADE ON JUDGE'S CHARGE

State Law Doesn't Define "Bystander" as the Dictionary Do — Jury Almost Hand-Picked.

NICOLA SACCO and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Italian radicals, are under sentence of death, having been convicted of the holdup murder of a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree, Mass., on April 15, 1920. The case has achieved world-wide notice due to the protests against the execution and acts of violence by radicals. Now new evidence has been discovered and will be heard Monday. This is the fourth of a series of articles dealing with the history of the case.

By JOHN J. LEARY JR.,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Whatever the final disposition of the Sacco-Vanzetti case, the many court rulings and more specifically Justice Brandeis' opinion, concurred in by his associates of the Supreme Court, furnished those who would rid the law of technicalities with a world of material.

The Massachusetts law the court of last resort, unlike the states, is strictly a court of law. It cannot pass upon the nature, quantity and quality of the evidence in a capital case. All motions for a new trial must be passed on by the trial judge, and the Supreme Court will consider matters not excepted to at the time of the trial.

For some reason or other, defense counsel made no exception to the much discussed charge of Judge Webster Thayer and asked for no supplemental rulings. The fact that the defense was barred from urging his much discussed reference to "consciousness of guilt" as a reason for new trial.

"Consciousness of guilt," as it appears in this case, had to do with the conduct of the defendants on the night of their arrest, when among other things they were represented as acting suspiciously.

Judge's Charge to Jury.

"Did the defendants," said Judge Thayer in his charge to the jury, "leave the Johnson house (where they were arrested) because they were conscious of or became suspicious of what Mrs. Johnson did? If they left because they were consciously guilty of what was being done, then you may say that is evidence tending to prove consciousness of guilt on their part. But still if you find such consciousness of guilt, such consciousness of guilt must relate to the murders and not to the fact that they and their friends were slacker and liable to be deported therefore or were even afraid that some kind of punishment might come to them."

The defense had saved an exception to the testimony on which this charge was based, but the Supreme Court, calling attention to the fact that no exception was made to the judge's charge, ruled that the evidence was properly admitted.

"The order in which evidence shall be introduced," the Supreme Court held, "is entirely within the discretion of the court."

"Discretion of the court," as it is a most elastic term, used to cover many things. Defenders of this particular ruling of the court admit that they do not recall an instance where a judge has been found to exceed "the discretion of the court."

Meaning of "Bystander."

The defense has charged that the method in which jurymen were chosen and permission refused to examine matters as to their beliefs on such matters as membership in trade unions or even to supply the defense with the names and addresses of the prospective jurors was arbitrary.

The jurymen are more impressed by the fact that in disposing of this objection Dudley F. Ranney, representing the State, urged, and the Court sustained him in holding that the term "bystander" does not mean what dictionaries say it does.

In the trial of these two men the regularly drawn panels of jurymen were exhausted early. In such cases the Massachusetts laws provide that additional jurymen must be selected from the county at large or from the "bystanders."

In other words, a "struck jury" is the Sheriff arbitrarily designating the numbers to be called from several of the cities and towns, and

INDIAN GRAVES, 1000 YEARS OLD, FOUND IN TENNESSEE

Farmer Digging Flower Bed Discovers Skeletons in Door Yard of Home.

By the Associated Press.
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 11.—Jonathan Dennis, a farmer, who lives five miles from the center of Nashville, has discovered that he built his home in the midst of an Indian graveyard with human skeletons surrounding his house.

While digging in his front lawn to plant some flowers, Dennis penetrated an Indian grave. The burial site covers about two acres and is an Indian mound. John Trotwood Moore, State librarian and archaeologist, who investigated the find will seek the aid of the Smithsonian Institution in mapping the mound for further discoveries.

Several of the graves were investigated. One of the skeletons measured six feet, nine and a half inches. In the same grave was another skeleton, supposed to be the wife of the warrior and between the two the bones of a child.

The bodies were found with the knees crouched up against the chest and lying on the side. Moore estimated the graves were from 500 to 1000 years old, judging from the crudeness of the implements found.

It is in testimony that his deputies selected "substantial citizens," "representative citizens," "intelligent citizens," "personal acquaintances" and men whom one met in a Masonic meeting.

The using of these men was challenged by the defense on the ground that they were not "bystanders." The Court said, "There were no bystanders here when we adjourned as I understand it."

Jury Virtually Hand-Picked.

Clearly this approach toward picking, for men of the type described would not be likely to be kindly disposed to men admittedly opposed to such things as organized government and private ownership of property.

Touching upon this point, the Supreme Court frankly ignored the meaning of the word as fixed by lexicographers.

"Discretion of the court," previously referred to, entered into the decision on this point, the "higher court" flouting "no abuse of discretion" in Judge Thayer's ruling against the objection that persons selected as these were would be partial to the prosecution.

Ranney, the jurymen man ever assigned by the State to represent it in an important murder case, will, in the event Sacco and Vanzetti are granted a new trial, promptly place them on trial again.

"But," he told me, "I doubt very much if the State will grant a new trial. I have examined all the affidavits filed by the defense—there are 67 of them to date—and I assure you there is nothing in them to warrant such action by the court."

"The facts are that these men committed the murders for one of which they were convicted, they had a fair trial, with the Judge leaning backward to see that they were fairly treated. The public does not know that. I wish it did and that somebody would tell the State's case as it is."

Ranney a Straight Shooter.

Ranney, like William G. Thompson, now counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, is of the local aristocracy. His father, Fletcher Ranney, who died early enough is the intimate and personal counsel of Thompson, has long been an outstanding figure at the Massachusetts bar.

To Ranney's credit the most zealous of the friends of Sacco and Vanzetti say that he came into the case the sharp-shooting on the part of the prosecution has been succeeded by straight shooting. He has, they say, not yielded an inch, but they point to his agreement to permit the affidavit of Celestino F. Madeiros, on which the motion for a new trial is chiefly predicated, to be held in abeyance pending the disposition of his case without prejudice to the case of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Madeiros, under sentence of death for another murder, says he was a member of the South Braintree holdup gang, and that Sacco and Vanzetti were not.

Ranney says, "He is lying."

"The other affidavit," Ranney adds, "Therefore I am convinced that Judge Thayer will see the case as we see it when it finally comes up before him."

One of the most outrageous things in this case has been the attacks made upon Judge Thayer. Thayer has been extremely fair in this case; he is a big man, and for anybody to deliver a verdict is chiefly predicated, to be held in abeyance pending the disposition of his case without prejudice to the case of Sacco and Vanzetti.

EXPOSITION TO CLOSE SEPT. 19 AS SCHEDULED

Exhibitors' Association Votes Against Proposal to Continue Until Week of Veiled Prophet.

ANOTHER PARADE MARKS ST. LOUIS DAY

Procession Moves Over Restricted Route, Following Protest of Retailers East of Twelfth Street.

Talk of continuing the Greater St. Louis Exposition until the week of Veiled Prophet, which this year will be Oct. 5 and 6, has been silenced by action of the Exhibitors' Association, which has voted to continue the exhibits only for the 16 days originally announced, ending on Sunday, Sept. 19. Another incentive for continuance of the exposition was the possibility of a world's baseball series here, beginning on Oct. 5.

Exhibitors, at the same time, silenced some of their own number, who were complaining about the condition of the grounds after each heavy rain.

The original plan of paving the exposition streets with crushed rock was not carried out because of the expense involved and rain makes the east-end heavy going.

The automobile show, in which decorations are unusually lavish, suffers from leaking tents. Exhibitors voted to carry through in spite of "hell and high water."

The Exhibitors' Association has been established as a permanent organization in view of the possibility of establishing some sort of exposition, preferably in a permanent building, as an annual event. Any exhibitor who withdraws from this show is expected to resign from the association.

"Reputation of City at Stake."

"The reputation of St. Louis is in the hands of the exhibitors," E. B. Langenberg, chairman of the Association said, "and when we in St. Louis, we injure ourselves."

Exhibitors were informed that the attendance for the first four days had been 1,200,000. The night arena show did not draw well, but recently the attendance has been increasing.

Because of the protests of downtown retail dealers that parades through the congested district caused too much confusion and interference with business, the parade for the Government to dedicate the new St. Louis Day, formed at Twelfth and Market streets, passed north to Locust and moved west on Locust without invading the downtown streets.

Firemen in Parade.

The parade was led by Mayor Miller and other city officials. The companies of infantry and field artillery from Jefferson Barracks which have been staging sham battles at the exposition were next in line. Then came the 53 Coscahs on horseback. These were followed by buses carrying members of the Exposition Frivolities club in costume. A long column of city firemen came next and the rear was brought up by a procession of new and old-style fire apparatus.

A large motor parade of two large motor parades, the modern section of the equipment. There were three bands in line.

One of today's special events is a ticket hunt for prizes. The first 5000 men who enter will be numbered to correspond with numbers handed to the first 5000 women. Who will receive prizes in Liberty Plaza.

MACMILLAN WILL CONTINUE
FROZEN NORTH EXPLORATION

Next Five Years to Be Spent in Labrador Instead of With South Seas Expedition.

By the Associated Press.
CHRISTMAS COVE, Me., Sept. 11.—Lieutenant-Commander Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, has declined to give up his work in the frozen North for exploration in the balmy warmth of the South Seas. For the next five years he will be engaged in an attempt to gain definite proof that the Norsemen founded a settlement in Labrador three centuries ago.

Commander MacMillan's new program became known here last night when he returned from a three months' voyage to Labrador and Greenland on behalf of the Field Museum of Chicago.

The 35 members of the MacMillan Field expedition arrived here yesterday on the schooner Bowdoin and Sachem after an over-night stop at Tennant's Harbor. Scores of small craft put out to meet them and relatives and friends held impromptu reunions with the returning voyagers.

MEXICAN BUSINESS MEN SEEK WAY TO AVERT CRASH

Conference of Chambers of Commerce Assembles to Consider Crisis Due to Economic Boycott.

MANY VACANT STORES IN THE CAPITAL

Misery Said to Be Acute in Rural Districts — Foreign Capital Timid About Investing in Mexico.

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 11.—A grave crisis, in the opinion of the Confederated Chambers of Commerce, impends in Mexico. Delegates from chambers all over the country met here today to devise ways and means to stave off a commercial crash. The crisis is attributed to the economic boycott called by the League for Catholic Defense.

While the Government is sound, the people are hard up. They have taken advantage of the economic boycott to cut expenses to the bone. The country's business has fallen off 50 per cent, according to conservative estimates, which indicate that before September there will be over greater shrinkage will be shown.

Empty stores in Mexico City can testify to the absence of trade and "To Let" signs are increasing everywhere.

The Avenue Madero, the principal shopping street of the capital, shows 35 vacant stores. Puebla, Guadalajara, Zaltitilo, Monterrey and San Luis Potosi report a gloomy commercial outlook. Misery in rural districts is said to be acute.

Portage of Money.

The Confederation of Chambers of Commerce will discuss plans for arranging the quantity of metallic currency in circulation. It is indicated that the Government will be asked to let go some of its gold and silver reserves. Publicly, the ally is on a metallic basis. The only bills in circulation are those issued by the Bank of Mexico. Approximately one-fifth of the country's metallic coin is said to be locked up in the vaults of the Treasury and the Bank of Mexico. Business complaints that there is not half enough loose currency to go around.

Shrinkage of foreign investments in Mexico is held by some to be a contributing cause of the impending crisis. All official reports say that foreign capital is waiting for the Government to dictate easier terms. The church-state conflict is also given as one of the reasons American money is shy of Mexico at present.

Many economic experts hold, however, that the effects of the boycott and money scarcity are only symptoms. They ascribe the shaky economic situation to the reluctance of foreign capital to operate in Mexico, and to under-production by Mexican agriculture. Mexico, it is forecast, will import approximately $60,000,000 pesos worth ($40,000,000) of foodstuffs this year.

A country endowed by nature to produce wheat and corn for a large part of the world at present is actually importing these commodities to the value of a million pesos a month. With vast grazing lands comparable with those of Argentina and Australia, it is getting meat from the United States and Mexico.

The agrarians predict all this will be changed as soon as the small farmer gets on his feet, but skeptical economic experts say agricultural production will never catch up with consumption until foreign capital flows into the country freely again.

These economic conditions, according to shrewd political observers, promise to make difficulties for the Government. Banditry is reported to be on the increase in the states of Morelos, Puebla, Mexico, Oaxaca and Michoacan. The reason for it is said to be the acute misery that prevails among the humble classes.

DAWES TO BROADCAST SEPT. 15

Will Resume Senate Rules Reform

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Vice President Dawes will resume his campaign for the reform of the Senate rules in an address to the audiences of 15 broadcasting stations Sept. 15.

The broadcasting stations will be hooked up for the program of the third Annual Radio Broadcasters' banquet, and it is estimated that 25,000,000 persons may listen in. It was announced that station WHAD of Milwaukee had been added to the chain. A special banquet is planned at Milwaukee to receive the New York program by radio.

VALIDITY OF $7,000,000 CLAIM INDICATED AS DEFENSE FOR DAUGHERTY

POINT DEVELOPED IN EXAMINATION OF
WITNESS FOR U. S.

WITNESS AGAINST DAUGHERTY

Richard Merton, Who Got Checks, Says Papers He Filed for Claim Were Accurate.

TELLS OF PAYMENT
TO JOHN T. KING

Government Will Seek to Show That Part of This Commission Went to Ex-Army-General.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—One defense indicated by cross-examination of the chief witness so far in the trial of Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller on charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States of their service is that payment of $7,000,000 by the United States to alien claimants was justified.

The former Attorney-General and the former Alien Property Custodian are accused of accepting $391,000 in bribes as return for compensation of aliens for war-time seizure of German-owned stocks of the American Metals Co. Documents submitted at Washington in order to obtain the money were truthful, Richard Merton, German copper magnate and former army captain, testified yesterday. They showed, he said, that German owners of a seized 49 per cent of stock in the American Metals Co. had transferred their claim to the Societe Suisse Pour Valeurs des Metaux. They did not reveal, however, that a majority of the stock in this corporation was German-owned. Cross-examination of Merton will continue when the trial resumes Monday.

Two Checks Delivered.

Two checks, said Merton in direct examination, for $3,500,357 and $2,955,622, were delivered to him in his New York hotel room by Miller. Because of the prohibition law he did not know where to get drinks for his guests at a dinner he gave in celebration, so he got the late John T. King, then Republican National Committee man from Connecticut, to get two bottles of champagne for him.

The German copper magnate gave Miller and King, as dinner souvenirs to Miller, King, who had arranged introductions for him, and Jesse Smith, Daugherty's right-hand man, who shared in the negotiations.

After dinner, the others asked Merton to go out, but he testified he did not go out, because, having $7,000,000 in my pocket, I did not feel like going out."

Next day, said Merton, he gave King $291,000 in Liberty Bonds from a block of $544,000 paid on the claim, as commission for facilitating his negotiations. Previously, he said, he had paid King a $50,000 retainer. The Government has set to introduce evidence connecting the defendants with the $391,000.

Why He Hired King.

The German magnate declared his reason for employing King rather than a lawyer to represent him was because he feared that a lawyer would cause action to be delayed for years in the courts and would cost too much. He said he would not go to court, because, having $7,000,000 in my pocket, I did not feel like going out."

The measures are certain to raise considerable opposition in all the parties.

DENIES $35,000,000 REQUEST
Duke of Argyl Replies to Inquiry in Regard to U. S. Man's Claim.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Duke of Argyl says he knows nothing concerning the statement of Albert Bertie, a San Francisco butler, that Bertie has been notified he was one of the heirs to the estate left by the late Duke of Argyl, valued at $35,000,000.

Replying to an inquiry concerning Bertie's statement, the Duke of Argyl sent the following telegram from Inveraray Castle: "I know nothing of the matter."

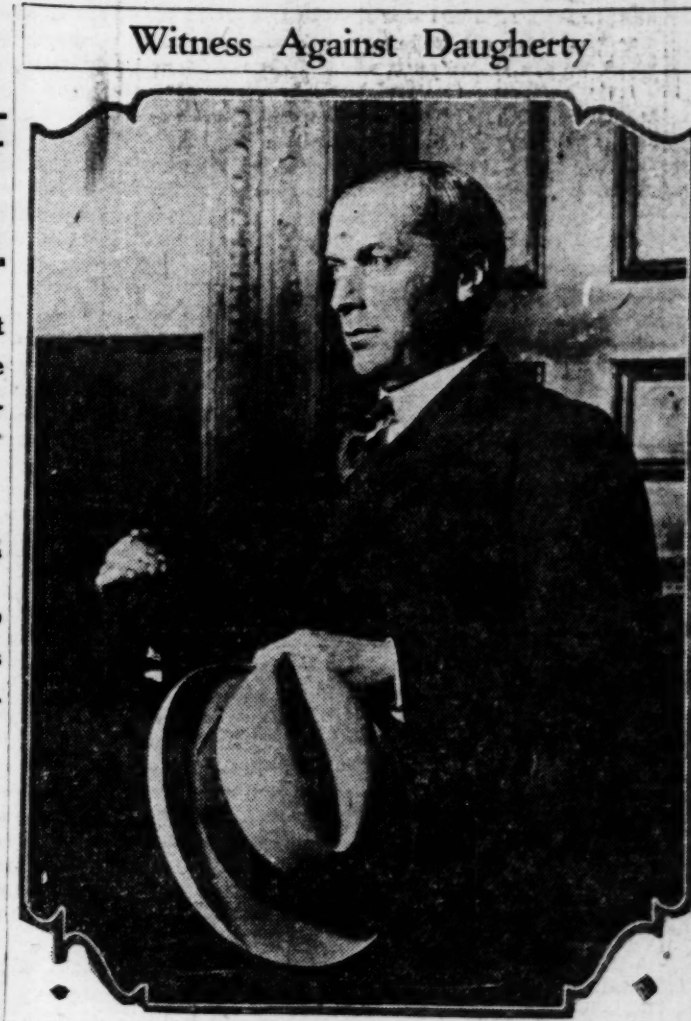

Lady Astor Prolongs Stay.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Changing her mind at the last moment, Lady Astor bade farewell to her husband and their five children as they sailed last night on the Olympic and stayed behind for "several weeks of rest."

"I am an idiot for letting my friends persuade me to stay over and let those children go back home alone," she said. "It just can't be done and work out right."

Norris to Speak for Democrats.

By the Associated Press.
OMAHA, Sept. 11.—Declaring he hoped to be able to "rouse the people of Pennsylvania to their chance to rid themselves of corruption," Senator George Norris of Nebraska (Rep.), has definitely announced he will campaign in that State this fall in behalf of William B. Wilson, Democratic candidate for the Senate.

RICHARD MERTON

Property Custodian's office in less than 72 hours.

This, Buckner alleged, was a much shorter time than that required for the payment of other claims.

POINCARÉ EFFECTING REFORMS LONG ADVOCATED IN FRANCE

Government Economies Just Put Into Effect Sought By Nation for 60 Years.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Sept. 11.—Premier Poincaré, in search of economies, has thrown dynamite into the archaic French administrative machinery, which has remained much as it was when the first Napoleon created it.

With the exception of the military economies, which form part of a comprehensive plan to recast and modernize the army, initiated two years ago, the reforms—for they are reforms rather than economies—which the Premier yesterday put in force by the stroke of his pen, had been advocated for 60 years as indispensable. No government, however, had had the courage to bring them into force by terms of law empowering the Government to take these steps.

Yesterday's decrees, which call for a gradual cutting down in the number of men in the army, the abolition of 106 sub-prefectures and 79 departmental secretariats and other economies in the Premier's plans to reduce the budget, are subject to ratification by Parliament. They cannot be amended and must be accepted or rejected as a whole, and political circles doubt whether individual Deputies dare oppose them in the interests of their own particular bailiwicks.

The measures are certain to raise considerable opposition in all the parties.

PREDICTS POSSIBLE SHORTAGE OF FREIGHT CARS AND ENGINES

Editor of Railroad Magazine Says General Prosperity Is Reducing Surplus.

Speaking before the St. Louis Railway Club last night, Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age, termed the maintenance of freight service the most important business and economic question of the day. Although increased production and shipments have reduced the available surplus of freight cars and locomotives, Dunn expressed no fear that service would be impaired this year, but said that if general prosperity conditions were to continue for another several years, a serious shortage of cars might result unless the railroads improve and enlarge their facilities.

Sound financing will not permit further increase in the bonded indebtedness of the roads, so that it will be necessary to issue stock to finance this expansion, the speaker said. This, he said, could not be done unless the Interstate Commerce Commission permitted the roads to earn more than a "fair return" in good years, so that the average earnings of the railroads over both good and bad years would enable them to compete for capital in the open market.

Italian Detachment Routed.

By the Associated Press.
TUNIS, North Africa, Sept. 11.—The Italian forces in Southern Tunisia lost 100 men killed or wounded, mostly native auxiliaries, in a battle of September 10 at the beginning of August, according to a report printed in a local newspaper. According to the natives, an Italian detachment commanded by Maj. Grotti was sent out after marauding Fellahs and encountered a much superior force than its own near El Gueitla. The Italians were obliged to retreat.

LEAGUE GETS SPAIN'S NOTICE OF WITHDRAWAL

Document Stating That Madrid Will Quit Organization in Two Years Forwarded to All Members.

JAPAN OPPOSES PLAN FOR BRANCH LEAGUES

Viscount Ishii Tells Assembly Such Organizations Would Create Suspicion and Intrigues.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 11.—Spain today resigned from the League of Nations.

The official communique issued at League headquarters reads: "The Secretary-General of the League of Nations this morning received through the Spanish Consul at Geneva a note from the Spanish Government giving formal notice, according to article one of the League covenant, that Spain will withdraw from the League on the expiration of two years from date of receipt of the note by the Secretary-General. The document has been circulated to all members of the League."

The Spanish note is said to be couched in the most friendly terms and wishes all success to the League.

Suggestions for creating several continental leagues as branches of the League of Nations were opposed yesterday by Viscount Ishii of Japan in an address before the Assembly. Viscount Ishii said such organizations would create misunderstandings, suspicions and intrigues. They would endanger peace by starting fresh antagonisms.

French Army Reduction.

The proposed reductions in the French army have created considerable interest in Geneva, indicating many of the delegates to the League that nations will reduce armament burdens without a written convention.

The spokesman of the German delegation declined to comment upon the significance of the French project and allowed it to be understood that the Germans were more interested in the French intentions regarding the forces of occupation in the Rhineland than in the size of the French army maintained on her own soil.

The delegates who have been following disarmament problems particularly and who had been dismayed over the lack of concern shown by members of the technical committees preparing for the disarmament conference, said they were becoming convinced that the disarmament problem will take care of itself. Each State, for economic reasons, they believe, will reduce its armament burden in proportion to the security it is convinced it possesses.

News that Spain had definitely decided to resign from the League of Nations was first given in an Associated Press dispatch, relayed over the Spanish border yesterday, France, last Tuesday.

The dispatch said the resignation had been agreed upon at a Cabinet council Tuesday, presided over by King Alfonso, and that a note had been prepared for dispatch to Geneva.

The delay in forwarding the resignation was explained in Geneva yesterday as being due to the Spaniards' desire not to embarrass the entry of Germany into the League.

The Spanish resignation follows rejection of her demand for a permanent seat on the League Council.

New Agreement Relieves Tension in Occupied Zone.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Germany's entry into the League already has borne fruit. It is announced that the German and allied governments have agreed to further improvement of conditions in the occupied territory.

Germany pledges herself not to retaliate against local German residents for obeying the occupation authorities, for services rendered to them, or for relations entered into with them except in cases of espionage or high treason.

The allied authorities agree to surrender to Germany all Germans sentenced by allied military tribunals for crimes committed against the occupation authorities in the Ruhr region at the bridgeheads of the Rhine and in the Cologne zone. Differences arising in these matters are to be submitted to arbitration.

This conciliatory policy fails to convince the German National party, whose leader, Count Westarp, at a meeting in Cologne, expressed disbelief that any better times are in sight for Germany as a result of her entry into the League. He declared there could be no conciliation or understanding so long as an enemy soldier was on German soil and Germans were forced to live under the yoke of the Versailles treaty.

PROFITS ARE TAKEN AND STOCKS OFF

Professional Speculators for the Decline Dominate Market—Close Above Lowest of Day.

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES.
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Following are the A. P. stock averages:

By Louis Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Professional speculators for the decline continued to dominate the stock market today and were successful in bringing about declines in most of the leading issues. The close was steeper than yesterday's, and the lowest of the day. Trade was inclined to take profits in anticipation of a general technical setback and as a result support was weak. The market was somewhat nervous in commission house circles that shares might be bought at lower levels. The general feeling was one of pessimism throughout the list. The government's crop estimates were construed as bearish in the grain markets and led to general liquidation in wheat and corn.

Motor Lead Decline.

"When it became apparent soon after the opening that the market lacked sustained rallying power, offerings quickly increased and the decline that got under way at yesterday's close gained momentum. New low records for the movement were reached in many of the standard issues. Motor shares led the decline. General Motors, falling back easily and Mack Trucks continued under pressure. Yellow Truck was further depressed, while many of the lower priced shares were held steady. The insurance market was quiet and the movement was in good demand, however, leading around the high of the recent recovery. U. S. Steel was urged out for stock and broke below 147, while other leading industrial sagged in sympathy.

Clearing House Statement.

"Evidence of a readjustment in the money market after the heavy shifting of funds in the weekly needs was provided in the weekly statement of Clearing House banks today. An increase in surplus of $1,818,410 was revealed, resulting in an excess reserve of $15,478,400. Loans, discounts, etc., declined $1,814,000.

Rail Joint Reaction.

"Although shares of the more prominent railroad received better support, nevertheless the trend in this section was toward lower levels. Louisville & Nashville and Nickel Plate were fairly well supported, while St. Louis-Southwestern was in demand, but Delaware & Hudson and several other recently active favorites sagged in response to profit-taking.

Exchange Market Quiet.

"Trading in the foreign exchange market was quiet and fluctuations were unimportant. The dollar was steady, with a slight improvement in the rate of exchange. The pound was steady, with a slight improvement in the rate of exchange. The franc was steady, with a slight improvement in the rate of exchange. The yen was steady, with a slight improvement in the rate of exchange. The dollar was steady, with a slight improvement in the rate of exchange. my Skunk. "Why couldn't the fish get away? What made stick to that arm that touched it?"

"Suckers," replied Gray. "Little suckers. Those arms, feet, or whatever you want to call them, are covered with little suckers on the under side. Once they touch anything, they certainly get hold of it. That little fish didn't have a chance in the world."

"I guess it is a good thing if it isn't any bigger than it," said Jimmy Skunk.

"Well," replied Gray, "there are some so big that if ever wrapped one of those around you, you wouldn't have a chance in the world. But of those big ones live around here. Why, if one of them should get hold of you, it could pull you under the water just as easily as a fellow down there caught the fish."

Reddy stared down into the water. "I don't like the looks of it," he said. "I don't like the looks of it. And I don't like the way he stares. And I don't like the way he swims back and forth. Instead of swimming forward like an honest person."

At that Grayling launched out. "What difference does it make to you, Reddy?" he asked.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," replied Reddy. "And I don't like the looks of him, because he doesn't look as if he had any bones or any shell."

"Well, he has," replied Gray. "He has a sort of shell on the inside. It must be bone, exclaiming Reddy.

"There's no must about it," replied Gray. "It isn't bone. It is a sort of shell. He doesn't look it, but he belongs to the mussels. You know, the clams, the snails and the scallops and oysters are all mollusks. So the fellow down there is related to them in a way."

"Huh! He doesn't look it," exclaimed Reddy, staring down into the water.

An Electric Washer Stands in the Basement Unused

Someone Wants To Buy It.

When the family lived down on California Avenue and did their own laundry work this washing machine, one of the best makes on the market, did the washings—efficiently!

Then these people moved into an apartment.

The washing machine was taken with them.

But their mode of living was changed—their laundering was sent out.

There the machine now stands—unused.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

The Why of Wayside Shops.

AUTOMOBILES have made the acquaintance of the wayside shops to the mutual benefit of all concerned. The shops are stocked with farm produce. Sometimes there is a little shelf of home-made jams, jellies, preserves and pickles. Often honey, bottled older vinegar, usually eggs, often fresh chickens.

All of these commodities are absorbed during a day and early evening by motorists, and a tidy little sum is realized. Now some of the women have tried selling home-made cakes and pies, and these also have been sold.

Still others have had so many calls for luncheons to carry away that on Saturdays and holidays they have the "mukins" in the house. This is very profitable. Where things are taken away, there is no cleaning up or dish-washing to follow.

Another idea is the tearoom. Many women have done well with them, especially so where a small gift shop is attached. A gift shop generally pays. It always does so if the things are chosen by a woman who knows how to buy and what to buy. A broad shady porch, a convenient kitchen opening on the porch and a room, maybe the formal parlor, that can be used for the gift shop is all that is needed to embark in a profitable summer and fall business. Of course, the house must be situated on a main thoroughfare on the way to some known point of interest.

An attractive sign must be placed that it may be seen going and coming and must be lighted in the twilight and as late as possible to serve the traveling public. Except on Saturday and Sunday and holidays, the customers do not begin to arrive until noon. This gives the morning for home duties, marketing and preparation. A word of warning on the price question may be given here. If the shop contains antiques, ask fair prices for them; exorbitant prices make slow sales. Don't stock too heavily or with things that can be gotten in everyday shops. Have convenient containers, so purchases can be done up quickly and attractively.

Seen Along Fifth Avenue

For evening wear, pink and black in combination is increasingly popular.

A white flannel ensemble consists of skirt and topcoat of the flannel. The white silk jersey jumper worn with the suit is striped in two shades of china blue.

Mink and broadtail coats are among the most fashionable. The less expensive models, however, include seal, natural moleskin and muskrat. Ermine, of course, is most used for evening wear.

Gloves with decorative cuffs are smarter than ever. They are especially effective with strictly tailored frocks.

Many coats are entirely lined with fur.

A few very unusual handbags are being shown in the smarter shops. These are made of Britany peasant petticoats, with sturdy frames.

Turbans and hats with rather high, softly draped crowns will be extremely popular. The latter will have very small, or medium-sized brims.

One shop is featuring dresses only in the following colors: Reds of varying shades from poppy to geranium and old red; blues in ash tones, old blues, cornflower, flag and light navy.

LOOKING OVER THE NEW SHOES

EACH season sees a greater, more ingenious creation of shoes and hand bags than the preceding one.

This season we find that shoes have been cut-out and cut-up to a great extent until the sandal with the trail quarter and tiny, cut-out vamp bears a marked resemblance to the footwear worn by the ancient Egyptians; and square-toed pumps with rigid, though well-defined steel buckles, have an unmistakably "Quakerish" origin.

Although shoes are confined to certain leathers there have been such marvelous developments in designs and colors recently that we find a galaxy of beautiful calf leathers for every occasion, costume and demand. A comparatively new design has been launched upon the sea with fashionable results. It is a baby black alligator, much neater and more uniform in pattern than the exact replica of the alligator skin.

Another new and successful two-toned leather is "Honeycomb," which comes in suede and glazed effects in the season's colors, including black.

Paris seems to favor two particular colors for smart footwear—maroon and dark brown, while the all pervasive black is seen extensively.

A word or two concerning bags is apropos at this particular time, as the style of matching shoes and hand bags has been successfully substantiated. The majority of bags for this purpose are of shoe leather and the design and color must be identical with those of the shoe.

Stewed Steak.

Slice a large onion thin and fry in a generous lump of butter until soft but not brown. Take a pound of tender steak and cut in strips, put the strips in with the onion to sear a few minutes, then turn in a pint of boiling water, pepper and salt. Cover closely and cook for an hour and a half. Add two ounces of well-washed rice and cook for fifteen minutes more, then add sliced fresh tomatoes over the top and dust with a little more salt, pepper and a few grains of sugar, cover and cook for half an hour longer, then serve.

Turning Back Life's Pages to Early Joys

The First Things That One Remembers Often Rank With the Happiest Moments.

By Winifred Black.

WHAT'S the first thing you remember—way back yonder—when the moon followed you around the garden and when the stars looked to you just like little pieces of silver paper cut out all ready for the Christmas tree?

WINIFRED BLACK

The first time I remember to remember—I saw a field—a little tiny field lying on a graded hill close to the road. The field was thick with green grass greener than anything I have ever seen since, and the green grass was starred with yellow dandelions, all in gay and friendly bloom.

They looked to me exactly like little gold buttons, and I can remember perfectly that I thought that as soon as I got home I would ask my mother to make me a little coat of green, with a row of gold buttons up and down the front.

For years after that I thought of the green field and the golden dandelions whenever they sang some hymn about the "better land" in church, and when my grandfather leaned his white head back summer afternoons and watched the thunder clouds up in the west, and when I asked her what and opened his mouth and sang as he often did:

"I see before the shining shore," I always stopped in my play and listened, and I knew to my own satisfaction that the reason the shore was "shining" was because it was covered with green grass, all starred with golden dandelions.

The next thing I remember is the day that old Fritz the hired man—oh, that's what we called him in those days—brought a rope up to the house and climbed into one of the great cottonwood trees—up and up he went, and far out on the great branch. He would not tell me what he was doing there, but when he came to the ground and then climbed to the cottonwood on the other side of the little path, I saw that he had a heavy rope in making a swing for me.

And sure enough he was, and I sat in the swing and rose and rose, higher and higher, till I was almost close to the top of the tall cottonwood. I could smell the strange, spicy fragrance of the great leaves, and up above us the blue sky was blue and there was a little white cloud sailing, sailing, and I rushed in the air like a bird and my heart sang—and yet I was filled with a kind of delicious fear, too.

The third thing I remember is the time I saw my mother coming into the gate with a package in her arms—and when I got close to her I saw that the package was a long box, and when I asked her what was in it she laughed, and said:

"Can't you tell by the shape of it that it is a fish—for dinner?" And I wondered why mother hadn't waited for the fishman, but then she opened the box, and it wasn't a fish at all—it was a lovely, rosy doll with yellow curls and bright blue eyes that shut when you laid it down.

I don't think I've ever known such a rush of delicious bliss as the sight of that doll gave me on that June day, long and long ago. The fourth thing I remember is the little girl who came into Sunday school with a knit tippet and muff, brown and white. I thought them lovely and wished I owned them, but the girl next to me looked at the muff and her black eyes were full of ridicule.

Poor soul, I've known her all my life and she's never had a really fine set of furs herself, but the little girl who wore the knitted home-made muff and who was so proud of it has since worn ermine and sable.

Yes, it is amusing to think back and see what it is you first remember, isn't it?

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

THE brave are those who suffer and are strong, who stand dry-eyed, and see their fond hopes go, who do not moan when carried by cruel wrong, who ask no quarter and who fear no foe. They know, as all men know, that joy is sweet, they know the bliss of beauty and of youth, and yet they have not flinched before defeat nor failed to baste happiness for truth. The brave are these whom, often, men acclaim. Or, often, men pass by and never know; but heedless of the garish glow of fame, serene, on their appointed way they go. The brave have fought that Earth might grow more fair, the brave have died, untouched by glory's gleams; the brave form that vast caravan who dare their all to shape life nearer to their dreams.

There is no man who has not some interesting associations with particular scenes, or airs, or books, and who does not feel their beauty or sublimity enhanced to him by such connections—Alison.

Even virtue is more fair when it appears in a beautiful person.—Virgil.

PEACE POLICY

Briand and Stresemann
Open Conversations at

TO CARRY OUT PLEDGE
GIVEN TO THE LEAGUE

Reduction of French Forces in Rhineland Reported to Be Among the Subjects Considered.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 11.
Conversations, the object of which is a broad Franco-German understanding not only on problems existing between France and Germany but of international policies as a whole, were begun
today between Gustav Stresemann,
the German Foreign Secretary, and M. Briand, Foreign Minister of France, with the knowledge of both
Mr. Asquith, Chamberlain, Great Britain, and Vandervelde of Bel-

This was the beginning of the emphasis of pledges made by the German and French statesmen in the League Assembly yesterday that they would strive logically to reach an accord.

It was understood that broad lines were discussed today. It is learned from German sources that Dr. Stresemann broached the matter nearest to the German heart, namely, the reduction of the French army to the Rhineland. He proposed first that the number of troops should be reduced from 70,000 to 25,000; second, the evacuation of three watering places—Wimener, Lagersdorf and Sauerbrunn; third, rendering all occupation "invisible."

One special subject to be emphasized in the proposed understanding is elaboration of an accord of financial and economic questions. Along the line of the Franco-German trade agreement, which has been under negotiation but with larger ramifications.

After a long conversation with M. Briand, Dr. Stresemann conferred with Sir Austen Chamberlain and put the British statesman in touch with the details of the Franco-German conversations which will be continued next week.

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—Spain has left the League of Nations. An official communication announcing Spain's withdrawal was received at Geneva today and circulated immediately among all the members of the League. The communication declared that Spain had taken this step "in obedience to imper-

The resignation is dated San Sebastian, Sept. 3, and signed by Foreign Minister Yanguas. It was delivered personally to Sir Epi Drummond, Secretary-General of the League, by the Spanish Consul at Geneva.

(The Associated Press announced Sept. 8 that Spain had definitely decided to resign from the League of Nations; that the resignation had been agreed upon at a Cabinet council and that a note had been prepared for dispatch to Geneva.) The note glides over the reason the resignation, but the Spanish representative had made it perfectly clear that the cause of the withdrawal was failure to obtain a permanent seat in the Council of the League simultaneously with the election of Germany to that honor. It points out that Spain had retained fication until the Assembly has approved the reform in the composition of the Council as regarding permanent members, because I wished to show respect for the League of Nations and desired also to await the Assembly's pronouncement on the Assembly's pronounce-

In conclusion the note says:
"In leaving the League of Nations in obedience to imperative duties, Spain desires to express the sincere wish that the high Mem-

League was founded and which our country has hitherto so earnestly and so effectively served will be crowned with success."
The Spanish resignation declares the plans of the League concerning the League

reached to elect again to a temporary seat and simultaneously extend her mandate of re-election, thus virtually assuring her broken membership in the Council, which henceforth will consist of 14, instead of 16 members.
